INTRODUCTION

The Geophysical Engineering Study Program at ITS under the Faculty of Civil Engineering, Planning, and Geo Sciences, was established in 2011.

- Focuses on the study of subsurface structures.
- Integrates Physics, Chemistry, Mathematics, and Geology, along with instrumentation and computational technologies.
- The Geophysical Engineering program has produced hundreds of graduates who have contributed to various sectors, including energy, environmental management, and disaster mitigation. Supported by a relevant curriculum and broad career opportunities, the program continues to prepare students for diverse professional paths.

ITS Geophysical Engineering holds strong potential to attract high school and equivalent students, although further efforts are still needed to improve public awareness and understanding of this field.
